“A treatise on the fundamental flaw in mankind’s way of being on earth, and the one simple fact of life we have overlooked since the beginning of so-called civilisation. But Therey doesn’t chide us, she offers a joyous way forward – or perhaps back – to a Garden of Eden, a reciprocal relationship with the earth that provides us with an abundance of what we need, rather than the scarcity mindset cultivated by our modern economic systems. Not so much a call to arms as a call to gratitude and love. I hope that those who read it will be profoundly affected, will discover their passion for a better future, and will bring their friends, neighbours, communities and governments along for the ride.”
